Subject: Turkey Delivers Two Shipments of COVID-19 Medical Supplies to the U.S.

Alexander,

I hope you and your loved ones are well during these difficult days.

On Tuesday evening, a Turkish military plane carrying thousands of donated medical supplies landed at Joint Base Andrews in Maryland. Another plane delivered additional supplies on Thursday. These personal protection items included N-95 masks, face shields, googles, overalls, and disinfectants.

To date, Turkey has delivered COVID-19 medical supplies to 55 countries during this pandemic. While the U.S.-Turkey relationship has had its challenges, these actions show that our countries continue to support each other during difficult times.

Below is one of many press stories regarding Turkey's delivery of medical supplies to the United States.

Thanks for allowing me to bring this to your attention. If you have any questions or concerns regarding Turkey, please feel free to contact me or I am happy to put you in touch with someone from the Embassy of Turkey.

Thanks,
Loren

(ANKARA, Turkey) — A second Turkish military plane took off from an air base near Ankara on Thursday carrying more medical aid to the United States which has been hit hard by the coronavirus pandemic.

The cargo plane is carrying a second consignment of personal protective equipment, including masks, hazmat suits and disinfectants, the Defense Ministry announced.

Turkey also dispatched a planeload of medical supplies on Tuesday that included 500,000 surgical masks, 4,000 overalls, 2,000 liters (528 gallons) of disinfectant, 1,500 goggles, 400 N-95 masks and 500 face shields.

The items dispatched Thursday were sent in boxes displaying the words of 13th-century Sufi Poet Jalaluddin Rumi in Turkish and English: “After hopelessness there is so much hope and after darkness there is much brighter sun.” The government didn’t immediately provide a breakdown of what was in the shipment.

Turkey’s deputy foreign minister, Selim Yavuz Kiran, and the U.S. Ambassador to Turkey, David Satterfield, were at the military airbase to see the plane off.

“We stand fully with our strategic partner,” Kiran later tweeted.

Separately, a Turkish military plane carrying medical supplies, including masks and disinfectants, also left for South Africa late on Wednesday, the state-run Anadolu Agency reported.

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan’s spokesman said meanwhile, that Turkey was sending medical supplies including masks, overalls and test kits to Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza.

“Turkey will continue to stand by the Palestinian people,” the spokesman, Ibrahim Kalin, wrote on Twitter. “Keep Keep humanity alive so that people can live.”

Turkish officials say the country has donated medical supplies to a total of 55 countries — including Britain, Italy and Spain.
